Salsomaggiore, together with Tabiano, is one of the most prestigious resort spas in Italy as well as one of the most distinctive and complete conference centre. Surrounded by lush, green hills Salsomaggiore and Tabiano lie in the heart of Northern Italy in the province of Parma. These thermal centres are the most popular in Europe, boasting plentiful parks, gardens, swimming pools, a golf course, trekking circuits and a wide choice of cultural, and artistic events. Nearby are the renowned cities of Parma and Piacenza, Busseto Verdi's native town, royal castles, where you can spend a day relaxing or enjoying what Italy is famous for – its food. Salsomaggiore and Tabiano offer a choice of more than 160 hotels with over 10.000 beds. The hotels provide traditional Emilian hospitality and courtesy, in a healthy environment.

"Salso Maggiore" is the old name given to the town owing the presence of one of the most highly saline mineral waters we know: a water appreciated and used in pre-roman times.

The particular architectural framework and urban development of the town was established in the first decades of the 20th century, following a plan typical of the "ville d'eau" of the period, and culminating in the magnificent "art déco" palace "Terme Berzieri" (1913-1923), symbol of Salsomaggiore Terme.
